VANGUARD COLLEGE - EXAMINATION POLICY
Regarding Final Examinations and Supplementals

Examinations are a normal part of courses offered at the College. The dates of the final examination period are provided to each student (via this specially published Examination Schedule). Students are advised not to make arrangements which may conflict with these dates.

Students must report promptly for all examinations. Final examinations are to be written during the assigned period set aside for that purpose in the final week of the semester.

If a course is failed for any of the following reasons, the course must be repeated to receive credit and the student will not graduate until such time as the course has been successfully completed.

1. Failure to complete all the course requirements
2. Loss of marks due to absenteeism, or
3. Failure to write the final examination

Conflicts

When a student finds that he/she has a conflicting examination schedule, the student shall notify both professors of the situation and take the following formula to determine which exam shall take precedence.

- a) The senior course, be it core or elective, shall take precedence over a freshman/junior level course. The senior level exam shall be written according to the original schedule.
- b) The course in which it has the longest sitting time for the examination shall take precedence over the exam with a short sitting time.
- c) The course found in the student's major area of specialty shall take priority over a non-major course.

Students making special arrangements with the instructor must also obtain from the General Office a Re-Schedule of Final Examination Form. This form must be signed by the instructor and the student and on file at the General Office a week before the date of the scheduled examination.
